Almost there, Rashmi!

Creating a skill development and training program app involves several stages, from planning and design to development and deployment. Identify the Target Audience, Determine who will be using the app (students, professionals, specific industry workers, etc.). Allow users to create and customize profiles. Provide a searchable and categorized list of available courses or training modules. Create a prototype to visualize the app's functionality and design. Functionality Testing, Ensuring all features work as intended. Created wireframes and UI/UX designs.
