Description (min 250 to max 800 words)*

In the realm of heritage conservation, the focus often gravitates towards tangible assets such as historic buildings, monuments, and archaeological sites. However, equally significant yet often overlooked are the intangible aspects of cultural heritage—traditions, rituals, oral histories, and cultural practices passed down through generations. "Cultural Routes" is an initiative aimed at raising awareness about the intangible aspects of conservation, emphasizing the importance of preserving these cultural narratives and traditions.

Understanding Intangible Heritage:

Intangible heritage encompasses a myriad of elements that define a community's identity and cultural legacy. This includes traditional craftsmanship, performing arts, folklore, language, cuisine, rituals, and social customs. These intangible expressions of culture are deeply intertwined with people's daily lives, shaping their identities, values, and sense of belonging.

Objectives of the Awareness Campaign:

Educate and Sensitize: Increase public awareness and understanding of intangible cultural heritage, highlighting its significance in fostering social cohesion, intergenerational dialogue, and sustainable development.

Document and Preserve: Advocate for the documentation and preservation of intangible heritage practices threatened by globalization, urbanization, and changing socio-economic dynamics.

Celebrate Diversity: Celebrate the richness and diversity of intangible cultural expressions, recognizing the unique contributions of different communities to our shared human heritage.

Promote Sustainable Tourism: Foster responsible tourism practices that respect and promote local cultural traditions, encouraging visitors to engage with communities in meaningful ways.

Campaign Strategies and Activities:

Community Workshops and Seminars: Organize interactive workshops and seminars in collaboration with local communities, cultural practitioners, and experts to discuss the significance of intangible heritage and explore strategies for its preservation.

Cultural Festivals and Performances: Showcase traditional music, dance, storytelling, and culinary arts through cultural festivals and performances, providing platforms for artists to share their talents and narratives with a wider audience.

Oral History Projects: Facilitate oral history projects to record and document narratives, memories, and traditions passed down through generations, ensuring their preservation for future generations.

Youth Engagement Programs: Engage young people through educational programs, art competitions, and youth-led initiatives that encourage active participation in safeguarding intangible heritage.

Digital Platforms and Multimedia Campaigns: Utilize digital platforms, social media channels, and multimedia campaigns to disseminate information, share stories, and raise awareness about intangible heritage conservation.

	Expected Outcomes: Increased awareness and appreciation for the importance of intangible cultural heritage in fostering cultural diversity, social cohesion, and sustainable development. Strengthened partnerships and collaborations between communities, governments, NGOs, and cultural institutions in support of intangible heritage preservation efforts. Enhanced cultural pride and sense of identity among communities through the recognition and celebration of their intangible cultural expressions. Sustainable tourism practices that promote respectful engagement with local communities and traditions, contributing to the preservation and transmission of intangible heritage. "Cultural Routes" endeavors to illuminate the intangible dimensions of cultural heritage, recognizing them as vital threads in the rich tapestry of human civilization. By fostering greater awareness, appreciation, and stewardship of intangible heritage, we can ensure its continuity and relevance for future generations, enriching our collective cultural landscape and fostering a more inclusive and harmonious world. Let us embark on this journey together, honoring the diverse cultural legacies that unite us as a global community.

Description (min 250 to max 800 words)*

On 14th June 2019, the School of Engineering and Technology (SET) at Sushant University, in collaboration with the Gurugram Municipal Corporation, organized an impactful event titled "Plastic Pollution Awareness - Where Does It Go?" The event was aimed at raising awareness about the escalating problem of plastic pollution, highlighting the journey of plastic waste, its environmental consequences, and the urgent need for sustainable solutions. This initiative brought together students, faculty members, environmental experts, and representatives from the Gurugram Municipal Corporation to engage in meaningful discussions about the challenges posed by plastic waste. The focus of the event was to shed light on the lifecycle of plastic, from production to disposal, and to address the question of where plastic ends up after it is discarded. The event's theme was chosen to emphasize the hidden reality of plastic waste accumulation and its impact on ecosystems, marine life, and human health. The session began with an insightful keynote address by an environmental expert from the Gurugram Municipal Corporation, who elaborated on the alarming statistics of plastic pollution and its detrimental effects on our planet. The speaker highlighted the fact that a significant portion of plastic waste ends up in landfills, oceans, and water bodies, causing irreversible damage to the environment. They stressed the importance of adopting a circular economy model that emphasizes reducing, reusing, and recycling plastic products to minimize their impact on nature. Students and participants were actively engaged in interactive workshops where they explored the science behind plastic degradation and the concept of microplastics. The workshops included demonstrations of how single-use plastics break down into smaller particles, contaminating soil and water, eventually making their way into the food chain. These sessions were designed to educate attendees on the importance of sustainable consumption patterns and the role they can play in reducing plastic waste. A panel discussion followed, featuring representatives from SET, Sushant University, and experts from the municipal corporation. The discussion focused on practical solutions for managing plastic waste, promoting biodegradable alternatives, and implementing strict waste segregation practices. The panelists emphasized the need for collective action from both the community and the authorities to tackle the issue of plastic pollution effectively. One of the highlights of the event was a pledge ceremony, where all participants committed to reducing their plastic footprint by adopting eco-friendly practices in their daily lives. This symbolic gesture aimed to inspire a movement towards conscious living and to motivate others to join the fight against plastic pollution. The pledge included commitments to using reusable bags, refusing single-use plastics, and spreading awareness within their communities about the harmful effects of plastic waste. The event concluded with a vote of thanks from the organizers, who expressed their gratitude to the Gurugram Municipal Corporation for their support and collaboration. They also acknowledged the enthusiasm and dedication of the participants

	in making the event a success. The initiative served as a powerful reminder of the impact that informed citizens can have when they unite to address environmental challenges. The collaboration between SET, Sushant University, and the Gurugram Municipal Corporation showcased the importance of educational institutions and local government bodies working together to drive sustainable change. Through events like "Plastic Pollution Awareness - Where Does It Go?" they aim to continue fostering a culture of environmental stewardship and empower individuals to take proactive steps towards a cleaner and greener future. This event was not just a learning opportunity; it was a call to action for everyone to rethink their relationship with plastic and contribute to a healthier planet. By highlighting the journey of plastic waste and its devastating effects, the event reinforced the message that reducing plastic pollution is not just an individual responsibility but a shared obligation for the well-being of our environment and future generations.

Ansals University has recently installed 200W Solar powered system under Awareness on “Sustainable energy for all” & installation of 200W Solar power system in one of its adopted villages - Turakpur, under Unnat Bharat Abhiyan 2.0 (UBA) on 1st August, 2019. This project is a solar powered home lighting system that uses solar powered fan and LED lighting technology in a more efficient way.

The project is a solution to one of the common problems of power cuts faced by rural India.

Unnat Bharat Abhiyan 2.0 (UBA) is an initiative of MHRD, Govt of India. Through this initiative, Govt seeks proactive participation of higher educational institutions in developing rural India.

UBA is inspired by the vision of transformational change in rural development processes by leveraging knowledge institutions to help build the architecture of an Inclusive India. It is driven by IIT-Delhi.

Ansal University under UBA has adopted 6 villages for their development in collaboration with district administration. 1. Mumtajpur 2. Turkapur 3. Baspadmka 4. Patiasooli 5. Bhokarka 6. Bargujjar.

The inauguration of the project was done by Hon'ble Vice Chancellor Dr. Raj Singh, Ansal University. He shared his vision for the sustainable development and the possible ways of a sustainable future. With technological intervention we can aim for the required transformative change and move towards clean and green technology. Under UBA, Ansal University's main focus will be on areas of Solar Energy, Biogas Energy and Rain Water Harvesting. We are living in an era when human behaviour drastically changes the earth environment and it is thus highly important to realize our responsibilities and act accordingly to find alternative to the ever diminishing resources for future generations.

Ansal University has also donated computer systems for learning and development of villagers and conducted tree plantation drive. Sarpanch, Turkapur and villagers thanked Unnat Bharat Team for their efforts in the village development.

On 23 August 2019, 20 students from Sushant University visited Parasoli village under the Unnat Bharat Abhiyan (UBA) initiative titled "Empowering Villages: Sustainable Development for a Better Tomorrow." The goal was to bridge the gap between rural communities and modern development practices by promoting sustainable agriculture, skill development, and local entrepreneurship.

During the visit, students and faculty engaged with villagers, focusing on sustainable farming techniques such as organic fertilizers, water conservation, and crop diversification. These practices were introduced to improve both environmental protection and agricultural productivity, benefiting the livelihoods of local farmers. Villagers were enthusiastic about adopting these methods, recognizing their potential to increase crop yields and protect the land. In addition to farming, the team emphasized skill development and entrepreneurship to supplement income. They introduced ideas such as home-based industries like handicrafts and food processing, which can diversify income

Jail Visit and Legal Awareness

Description (min 250 to max 800 words)*

A legal awareness camp was conducted during a visit to Bhondsi Jail, Haryana, by Legal Aid Clinic of School of Law under the umbrella of Ansal University with the aim of educating inmates about their legal rights and providing them with much-needed legal assistance. The initiative, organized in collaboration with legal professionals, law students, and social workers, focused on raising awareness about the rights to a fair trial, free legal aid, bail, and appeal under the Indian Constitution. Special attention was given to undertrial prisoners, many of whom were unaware of their rights or lacked proper legal representation. The team reviewed cases, provided legal advice, and connected inmates with legal aid services to ensure a fair and speedy trial. In addition to legal guidance, the camp also offered counseling on rehabilitation programs available in the jail, aimed at helping inmates reintegrate into society after release. The camp helped empower inmates by improving their understanding of the legal system, particularly highlighting the importance of free legal services for those who could not afford representation. The legal aid cell has taken the initiative to provide free legal services to under trial prisoners. The broader object is to ensure that under trial prisoners are aware of the bail provisions and other legal rights guaranteed and protected by the Constitution of India. Assistant Professors Dr. Deepak Miglani and Mr. Sharjil Khan organized a field activity under its AULAC program for B.A.LL.B(Hons)3rdyear students to Bhondsi Jail on 27 August 2019.

Description (min 250 to max 800 words)*

On October 15, 2019, the School of Business, in collaboration with Rosewood City, launched the "Teach to Spread Happiness" education drive. This initiative was specifically designed for students and teachers, aiming to integrate happiness and emotional well-being into the educational experience. The drive highlighted the importance of mental health and positive thinking as essential elements for academic and personal growth.

One of the central goals of the drive was to equip teachers with the skills to foster a positive and supportive learning environment. Through a series of workshops, educators were trained on how to promote emotional intelligence, empathy, and gratitude in the classroom. These workshops focused on interactive activities that teachers could incorporate into their teaching practices, helping students build emotional resilience and develop a growth mindset.

For students, the drive provided opportunities to participate in activities that encouraged mindfulness, stress management, and self-reflection. Sessions on mindfulness and emotional well-being helped students better understand their own feelings and how to manage stress, particularly in academic settings. The initiative emphasized the importance of balancing academic responsibilities with mental health, enabling students to perform better both in and out of the classroom.

The event saw enthusiastic participation from both teachers and students, with many reporting a renewed sense of well-being and a more positive outlook. Teachers noted improved classroom dynamics, with students showing greater engagement and a deeper sense of empathy towards their peers. The "Teach to Spread Happiness" drive was a resounding success, demonstrating the power of integrating happiness-focused education in fostering emotional well-being and academic success.

Description (min 250 to max 800 words)*	The Badshahpur Bawdi is located in the present day city of Gurugram, as part of a settlement known as Badshahpur. Badshahpur was a census town as a part of the 2011 Census of India, but got absorbed in the municipal boundary of Gurgaon, now Gurugram, in 2012. The Badshahpur Bawdi appears to date from late 19th century in terms of continuity of late Mughal architectural vocabulary intermixed with Colonial. But as per a stone plaque affixed onto one of its arches as well as per the dating done by the AIIS in 2008, it is attributed to the year 1905. This was also revealed during studies carried out by our students as a part of their second semester studio project. The two-storied structure has three points of entrance, known to be for men, women and cattle respectively. As per various studies done by the AIIS and by SSAA MArch (BH) students, the structure is approximately 60 meters long and 10 meters wide. An interesting mix of late Mughal and colonial architectural vocabulary, the Bawdi

	was built by a landowner of Badshahpur whose descendants still live in Gurugram and Badshahpur. The Bawdi is one of the scarce reflections of a layer of history from British India in the region. The last decade and a half has seen a huge transformation in terms of the immediate context of the Bawdi. The expanse of land around the Bawdi was cut into land parcels and developed over this period of time, affecting its ecological setting. A primary government girls' school was built adjacent to the eastern edge of the Bawdi and a secondary government girls' school further beyond. Highrise housing development came up just 200 meters from the Bawdi and a Sector Road was proposed to be constructed close to it in the Final Development Plan 2021 AD of Gurgaon Manesar Urban Complex in 2012. The 100 days entailed workshops with government schools in the vicinity of the Badshahpur Bawdi, collaborative outreach activities along with documenting and developing proposals of reuse for the site. The events organised to raise awareness and map stakeholder perceptions were: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 30.10.2019 (Day 01)- Site visit by M Arch Built heritage student and faculty. • 08.11.2019 (Day 20)- On-campus talk by Ms. Victoria Lautman, on her book 'The Vanishing Step Wells of India. • 08.12.2019 (Day 40)- Banner installation at the Bawdi by the students of M Arch BH. • 18.12.2019 (Day 50)- Cleaning of the Bawdi by the owner Mr. Ved Prakash Mangla • 24.12.2019 (Day 56)- Visit to the Bawdi with students of 5th year B Arch Elective 'Architecture Journalism' and Masters' Elective 'Humanistic Design' from SSAA. • 26.12.2019 (Day 58)- Understanding building defects with M Arch BH students. • 30.01.2020 (Day 91)- SSAA collaborated with ICOMOS India (North Zone) to mark the World heritage day at the Bawdi. The Project was taken as a part of the M Arch BH Second Semester studio, through which the students developed conceptual proposals for conservation and reuse of the Badshahpur Bawdi.

Description (min 250 to max 800 words)*	We make a living by what we get, but we make a life by what we give.” —Winston Churchill On 8th November 2019, the students from the Call for Humanity Social Welfare Club, School of Engineering and Technology, in collaboration with the Unnat Bharat Abhiyan, conducted a heartwarming donation drive for the children of the Badgujjar community. This initiative was aimed at providing educational resources to underprivileged children, ensuring they have the necessary tools to pursue their studies and broaden their horizons. The focus of the donation drive was to distribute books, notebooks, and other essential stationery items, which would help the children in their academic journey. The event was a resounding success, with both the

volunteers and the children expressing immense joy throughout the day. The children's radiant smiles perfectly captured the happiness and excitement they felt upon receiving the books and notebooks. For many of them, these simple yet essential items represent new opportunities for learning and personal growth. Access to educational resources is often a challenge in underserved communities, and this small contribution is a significant step in bridging that gap. The volunteers were deeply moved by the enthusiasm and eagerness displayed by the children, reinforcing the importance of such initiatives in shaping young minds. In addition to distributing materials, the students from Call for Humanity also took the time to interact with the children, sharing stories, engaging in educational games, and encouraging them to pursue their studies with dedication. These interactions helped build a strong sense of connection and empathy between the volunteers and the community. The students emphasized the long-term benefits of education, explaining how it can lead to brighter futures and open up new avenues of opportunity.

The donation drive not only fulfilled an immediate need but also ignited hope and inspiration among the children. The event reaffirmed the belief that small acts of kindness, such as providing educational supplies, can have a lasting impact on a child's life. With continued efforts, initiatives like these will continue to empower young learners in the Badgujjar community and beyond, ensuring they have the resources and support they need to succeed academically.

Description (min 250 to max 800 words)*	On 20th November 2019, the School of Business at Sushant University took a significant step toward promoting road safety through its community awareness initiative titled “Safe Roads, Happy Lives.” The event aimed to raise awareness about road safety measures and responsible driving, emphasizing the importance of following traffic rules to reduce accidents and save lives. The overarching goal of the drive was to educate students, faculty, and the local community about the critical aspects of road safety, such as adhering to speed limits, wearing helmets and seat belts, avoiding mobile phone use while driving, and being mindful of pedestrians. With the increasing number of road accidents in urban areas, the School of Business felt the need to contribute to creating a safer environment for everyone on the road.

The day started with an inaugural session where the Dean of the School of Business, delivered a powerful address highlighting the statistics on road accidents and the urgency of spreading awareness. The session was followed by an insightful talk by Mr. [Speaker's Name], a traffic expert, who emphasized the importance of defensive driving and understanding road signs.

One of the highlights of the event was a "Safety Walk" conducted around the campus, involving students, faculty, and staff. Participants carried placards with messages like "Drive Safe, Arrive Safe," "Speed Thrills but Kills," and "Buckle Up for Safety." The walk attracted the attention of passersby, some of whom joined the cause.

The drive successfully engaged over 300 participants, and the event sparked discussions within the local community about the importance of safe driving practices. The participants left with a renewed sense of responsibility towards road safety, vowing to adhere to traffic regulations and encourage others to do the same.

In conclusion, "Safe Roads, Happy Lives" was an impactful initiative by the School of Business that not only educated but also inspired the community to contribute towards making roads safer for all. The event laid the foundation for future road safety initiatives and demonstrated the power of education in transforming lives.

Eye Camp Mumtazpur

Description (min 250 to max 800 words)*

Under the Unnat Bharat Abhiyan (UBA) initiative, another impactful activity was conducted in Mumtazpur village, Haryana, on 21st November 2019. The School of Engineering and Technology (SET), in collaboration with the Sushant School of Health Sciences (SSHS), organized a comprehensive eye screening camp for the village residents. This initiative aimed not only to provide basic healthcare services but also to improve the overall well-being of the villagers by addressing a critical aspect of health—vision care.

	The eye screening camp was a crucial step in detecting early-stage vision impairments and providing immediate support to the villagers who needed further treatment or corrective measures, such as spectacles. Many of the residents, especially the elderly, availed the opportunity to get their eyes checked, and several individuals were referred for further medical care, ensuring they received timely treatment. The eye screening camp was met with great enthusiasm, and the villagers were grateful for the accessible healthcare provided to them at their doorstep. In addition to the health camp, the SET and SSHS teams also engaged in data collection for a village-wide survey. This involved the procurement of valuable information through household survey forms, which provided insights into the demographic, social, and economic conditions of the villagers. This data is essential for future initiatives and planning under the Unnat Bharat Abhiyan, as it helps the organizing teams tailor their efforts to the specific needs of the village. The combination of healthcare services and data collection demonstrated a holistic approach to rural development, covering both immediate health concerns and long-term planning. This initiative reflects the commitment of SET and SSHS to improving rural life and contributing to sustainable development in line with the goals of Unnat Bharat Abhiyan.

Students displaying print making work on fabrics and textiles

Description (min 250 to max 800 words)*

Workshop Report: "Print Making on Textiles for School Students"

On 9th December 2019, the School of Design at Sushant University organized a highly engaging and educational workshop titled "Print Making on Textiles for School Students." The event was an initiative to introduce young minds to the creative world of textile printing, providing hands-on experience in the craft and allowing students to express their creativity through fabric. The workshop drew participation from school students of various age groups, fostering an environment of learning, experimentation, and artistic expression.

Workshop Objectives:

The primary goal of the workshop was to acquaint school students with the techniques and art of printmaking on textiles, which is an integral aspect of fabric design and the fashion industry. By engaging with this age group, the workshop aimed to:

1. Spark creativity: Encouraging students to experiment with designs, colors, and patterns to make unique and personal prints on fabric.
2. Develop hands-on skills: Giving students the opportunity to learn and practice different printmaking techniques on textiles, such as block printing, screen printing, and stencil work.
3. Promote art and design awareness: Introducing students to the world of textile design, promoting awareness of art and design as career options for the future.
4. Enhance understanding of traditional crafts: Providing exposure to traditional printmaking methods like block printing, and discussing the relevance of such crafts in contemporary fashion and textiles.

Workshop Format and Structure:

The workshop was divided into multiple sessions, each tailored to different aspects of printmaking. The structure was designed to be participatory and immersive, allowing students to gain hands-on experience under the guidance of professionals.

1. Introduction to Printmaking Techniques:

The workshop began with an introductory session where the students were introduced to the different methods of textile printmaking. The facilitators, who were experienced designers and faculty members of the School of Design, explained the history of printmaking in India, particularly highlighting traditional techniques like block printing. They also discussed how modern technologies, such as digital printing, have evolved from these age-old methods.

2. Demonstration of Techniques:

Following the theoretical introduction, students were shown live demonstrations of various printmaking techniques. The facilitators focused on the two primary techniques:

- Block Printing: The facilitator demonstrated how wooden blocks, intricately carved with designs, can be used to transfer patterns onto fabric. The process of applying ink, positioning the block, and ensuring the uniformity of prints was shown step by step. Students learned about the different types of dyes and fabrics that work best for block printing, and how these choices influence the final outcome.

- Screen Printing: A simpler method suitable for beginners, screen printing was also demonstrated. The facilitator showed how screens are prepared, stencils are used, and fabric is laid out for printing. Emphasis was placed on precision in applying ink evenly across the stencil to achieve clean prints.

3. Hands-on Practice:

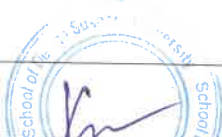

After the demonstrations, students were divided into smaller groups and encouraged to try the techniques themselves. Under the close supervision of faculty members and experienced students from the design school, the participants created their own designs and executed them on fabric. The materials were pre-arranged, with a variety of wooden blocks, stencils, fabric swatches, inks, and dyes available for use.

This part of the workshop was particularly lively, as students enjoyed experimenting with colors and patterns, mixing different techniques to create unique pieces. Some students opted for more traditional floral motifs in their block printing, while others took a modern approach, using abstract shapes in their screen-printed designs. The hands-on nature of the activity allowed the students to fully engage with the creative process, taking ownership of their prints.

4. Feedback and Reflection:

Once the practice session concluded, the students were asked to display their printed fabrics, and a feedback session was held. The facilitators provided constructive feedback on the prints, discussing what worked well and suggesting ways to improve in future attempts. There was also a discussion about the importance of patience and precision in printmaking, as the art form requires attention to detail to achieve professional results.

Additionally, students were encouraged to share their experiences and thoughts about the process. Many expressed their enjoyment in trying something new and were eager to explore printmaking further. Some even mentioned the possibility of incorporating what they had learned into school art projects.

	Key Outcomes: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Creative Expression: The workshop successfully engaged students in the creative process, giving them the freedom to experiment with their designs and fostering a deeper appreciation for the art of printmaking. 2. Skill Development: Students left the workshop equipped with foundational skills in printmaking techniques, having had the opportunity to learn both block and screen printing methods. 3. Introduction to Design Careers: The event provided school students with exposure to the world of design, giving them insights into textile and fashion design as viable career paths. The facilitators also discussed opportunities within the field of textile arts, potentially inspiring students to pursue further studies in design. 4. Promotion of Traditional Crafts: By introducing traditional methods such as block printing, the workshop reinforced the importance of preserving and valuing India's rich artisanal heritage. 5. Collaboration and Peer Learning: Students were encouraged to collaborate, share ideas, and learn from one another throughout the hands-on sessions. This created a sense of camaraderie and collective creativity that enriched the overall learning experience. Conclusion: The Print Making on Textiles workshop for school students, held on 9th December 2019 at Sushant University, was an enlightening and productive event. It provided young participants with an invaluable opportunity to learn about the art and craft of printmaking, fostering both their artistic expression and technical skills. The workshop not only introduced students to potential career paths in design but also highlighted the importance of traditional crafts in contemporary textiles. With its blend of theory, practice, and feedback, the event was a memorable experience for all involved, leaving students inspired to continue exploring their creative potential.

Key Issues Addressed <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Honor Killings: One of the primary concerns addressed at the camp was the prevalence of honor killings, which have been often sanctioned by Khap Panchayats. These councils, adhering to outdated customs, have sometimes ordered violence against individuals, particularly women, who marry outside their caste or clan. 2. Gender Bias: Khap Panchayats have long been criticized for being patriarchal, with most decisions favoring men. Issues like property rights, inheritance, and marriage were discussed, highlighting the legal protections available to women under Indian law.

	3. Marriage Laws: The camp aimed to educate people about their constitutional right to choose their partner, irrespective of caste or community, in contrast to the restrictions imposed by Khap Panchayat traditions. 4. Constitutional Rights vs. Customary Law: A significant focus of the camp was to educate the people on the supremacy of constitutional law over customary law. Local legal experts explained how the rulings of Khap Panchayats, particularly in criminal matters, are illegal and non-binding. The camp was organized with the support of Local Bar Association for Providing free legal counselling and assistance, NGOs who Focused on women's rights, legal reform, and human rights advocacy and Law students Offering assistance in educating the public about their rights and collecting data on Khap Panchayat's influence

Description (min 250 to max 800 words)*

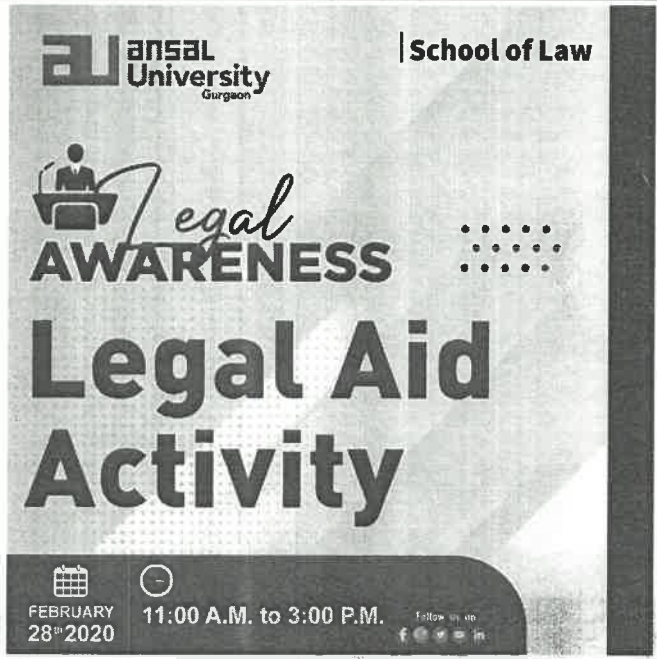

Ansal University Legal Aid Clinic under the umbrella of School of Law, Sushant University along with District Legal Services Authority (DLSA), Gurugram organised an educational trip and legal awareness camp on one of the most significant and contemporary legal issues in the present society i.e. "Say no to Plastic" on February 11, 2020. Members of SLAC performed an influential skit in 33rd International Crafts Mela, Surajkund, Faridabad to spread awareness on the issue of Plastic Consumption & Usage. The event started with the address about the issue and causes related to it followed by the street play. As per the theme i.e. "Say No to Plastic" awareness was created about the harmful effects of plastic pollution and educate the local community on relevant environmental laws. The camp addressed the environmental and health hazards caused by excessive plastic use, particularly single-use plastics, and discussed legal measures such as the Plastic Waste Management Rules 2016, which ban certain plastic products. Legal experts provided guidance to businesses and vendors on compliance with the plastic ban, offering alternatives like cloth bags and biodegradable packaging. The camp successfully spread awareness about the legal framework and encouraged the adoption of eco-friendly practices, while also offering legal assistance to those seeking to understand their rights and

	responsibilities regarding plastic usage. However, challenges such as resistance from small businesses and the need for affordable alternatives were identified, underscoring the importance of continued advocacy and stricter enforcement of plastic-related laws. The main motive of the street play was to spread awareness about the gravity of the issue in a simple and persuasive tone. The event was well accepted by the public and the audience have taken pledge to further spread the message to the corners of their reach.

In the fast-paced urban landscape of Gurugram, amidst towering skyscrapers and modernity's relentless march, there lies a silent narrative of lost typologies, whispering tales of a bygone era. As the city burgeons with technological advancements and commercial developments, its heritage, often overlooked, stands at the brink of oblivion. Among these fading relics, the Havelis and Chaupals symbolize a cultural richness that is fading into obscurity.

Havelis: Once the epitome of opulence and architectural grandeur, Havelis adorned the landscape of Gurugram, reflecting the affluent lifestyle of its erstwhile inhabitants. These sprawling mansions, characterized by intricate carvings, sprawling courtyards, and ornate facades, were the pride of the city's heritage. However, rapid urbanization and neglect have left many Havelis dilapidated, their walls echoing forgotten whispers of history.

In Gurugram's relentless pursuit of modernity, many Havelis have succumbed to the wrecking ball, making way for gleaming skyscrapers and commercial complexes. The few that remain stand as solemn reminders of a bygone era, their fading glory a testament to the city's changing landscape. Efforts to preserve these architectural marvels are underway, albeit overshadowed by the clamor of progress.

Chaupals: In stark contrast to the grandeur of Havelis, Chaupals served as the heartbeats of rural communities, fostering social cohesion and communal harmony. These open-air gathering spaces, nestled amidst verdant fields and rustic landscapes, were the epicenters of dialogue, deliberation, and cultural exchange. Here, under the canopy of ancient trees, villagers congregated to share stories, resolve disputes, and celebrate festivities.

However, with the tide of urbanization sweeping across Gurugram's peripheries, many Chaupals have faded into oblivion, their once bustling courtyards now silent and deserted. The encroachment of concrete jungles has eroded the very essence of community life, relegating these sacred spaces to the annals of history.

	Yet, amidst the encroaching shadows, glimmers of hope emerge. Initiatives such as Heritage Watch strive to reignite the flame of cultural preservation, advocating for the protection and restoration of Gurugram's lost typologies. Through community engagement, awareness campaigns, and advocacy efforts, these endeavors seek to safeguard the city's heritage for future generations. As Gurugram embarks on a journey of urban transformation, it is imperative to recognize the intrinsic value of its cultural heritage. The preservation of Havelis and Chaupals not only pays homage to the city's storied past but also fosters a sense of identity and belonging among its inhabitants. In embracing its heritage, Gurugram can carve a path towards sustainable development that honors the legacy of generations past while paving the way for a more inclusive and resilient future.

Discussion on post-covid approach about conservation of havelis

(Geotag) Photograph-2

A session on Jaisalmer Havelis

Description (min 250 to max 800 words)*

The traditional architectural typologies of India hold a profound place in the country's rich cultural and social heritage. Among the many distinctive styles that have evolved over centuries, havelis, with their introverted courtyard designs, stand as an iconic representation of Indian architecture. Recognizing the importance of preserving and understanding these structures, the M. Arch. BH program at Sushant School of Art and Architecture, Ansal University, organized a webinar titled Decoding the Haveli on May 9, 2020. This initiative aimed to delve into the intricacies of haveli architecture, exploring its historical significance, regional variations, and the challenges it faces today.

The webinar, held virtually due to the global pandemic, brought together experts, faculty, and students from various architectural backgrounds, offering a platform for rich discussion and debate. The focus was on the haveli as an essential component of India's architectural legacy, particularly in urban settings, where these structures often served as homes for affluent families. The havelis of cities such as Jaisalmer, Lucknow, and Delhi are renowned for their grand facades, detailed ornamentation, and the unique design of their courtyards. These open spaces, often central to the home, were not merely decorative but served a functional purpose, offering ventilation, a private outdoor area, and a space for social activities within the confines of the household.

However, the webinar also addressed a more urgent issue: the gradual disappearance of these heritage structures. With rapid urbanization and changing lifestyles, havelis are increasingly being replaced by modern constructions, and their cultural significance is fading from public memory. The loss of these buildings is not just an architectural concern but also represents the erosion of the social structures and ways of life that havelis once supported. Traditional courtyard homes fostered strong family ties and provided a sanctuary from the hustle and bustle of city life. Today, the pressures of space, cost, and modern design preferences are threatening these spaces, leaving many havelis in a state of neglect or subject to demolition.

During the webinar, various experts highlighted the specific regional differences in haveli architecture, ranging from the intricately carved sandstone facades of Rajasthan to the more understated, yet equally grand, structures found in parts of North India. The discussion also touched upon the influence of climate, material availability, and local cultural practices on the design of these buildings. In regions like Rajasthan, for example, havelis were built to withstand the extreme desert heat, with thick walls and narrow windows helping to keep the interiors cool. The panel emphasized that each haveli is a unique reflection of its time, place, and the people who lived within its walls.

Participants in the webinar also explored potential solutions for the preservation and adaptation of havelis in the modern world. One idea discussed was the possibility of repurposing these historic structures for contemporary use, such as converting them into cultural centers, boutique hotels, or museums. By doing so, these buildings could be brought back to life, ensuring that they remain relevant and valuable in today's urban landscape. The concept of adaptive reuse is one way to strike a balance between preserving the past and meeting the needs of the present.

	In conclusion, Decoding the Haveli served as a crucial reminder of the importance of protecting India's architectural heritage. As havelis continue to disappear, there is a growing need for awareness and action to prevent their extinction. Through initiatives like this webinar, the M. Arch. BH program at Sushant School of Art and Architecture is helping to keep these traditional typologies alive, fostering a deeper understanding of their cultural value and encouraging efforts to preserve them for future generations.

In the rich tapestry of Indian socio-cultural history, certain architectural typologies stand as poignant reminders of a bygone era, embodying traditions, community life, and a unique sense of belonging. Among these, the chaupal and haveli hold significant cultural importance, reflecting not only architectural brilliance but also serving as hubs of social interaction, storytelling, and communal harmony.

The Chaupal:

In rural India, the chaupal emerges as a quintessential gathering space, embodying the essence of community life. Traditionally an open-air meeting place, often nestled under the shade of a spreading tree, the chaupal serves as a platform for discussions, deliberations, and celebrations. Here, villagers congregate to exchange news, share stories, and seek counsel from elders, fostering a sense of kinship and solidarity within the community.

The Haveli

In contrast, the haveli represents a symbol of opulence and grandeur, showcasing exquisite architecture and intricate craftsmanship. Typically found in urban centers and affluent regions, havelis are sprawling mansions adorned with ornate facades, elaborate courtyards, and intricately carved interiors. Beyond their aesthetic appeal, havelis serve as repositories of cultural heritage, echoing the stories of generations past and embodying the aristocratic lifestyles of bygone eras.

Preserving Socio-Cultural Heritage:

However, amidst rapid urbanization, changing lifestyles, and modernization trends, these architectural typologies face the looming threat of neglect, deterioration, and eventual extinction. As urban landscapes evolve and traditional values erode, the chaupal and haveli risk fading into oblivion, taking with them centuries of shared memories, cultural practices, and communal identities.

To address this pressing issue, an awareness drive aimed at preserving socio-cultural heritage becomes imperative. Such an initiative seeks to educate communities, policymakers, and stakeholders about the intrinsic value of these architectural marvels and the need for their conservation. Through advocacy campaigns, public forums, and collaborative partnerships, the awareness drive endeavors to instill a sense of pride and ownership among citizens, fostering a collective responsibility towards safeguarding our shared heritage.

Furthermore, the preservation efforts extend beyond mere architectural conservation, encompassing broader initiatives aimed at revitalizing community engagement, promoting cultural exchange, and nurturing a sense of belonging among diverse demographics. By leveraging innovative approaches such as adaptive reuse, heritage tourism, and community-driven initiatives, stakeholders can breathe new life into these historic spaces, transforming them into vibrant centers of cultural revival and socio-economic development.

In conclusion, the preservation of lost typologies such as the chaupal and haveli is not merely a matter of architectural conservation but a testament to our commitment to safeguarding the rich tapestry of socio-cultural heritage that defines our collective identity. Through concerted efforts and unwavering dedication, we can ensure that these timeless treasures continue to resonate with future generations, serving as enduring symbols of resilience, creativity, and community spirit in an ever-changing world.
