LECTURE CAPTURING LAB

LECTURE CAPTURING LAB

Sushant university has a setup of Capturing Lectures in a Lab. Lecture capturing lab is equipped with such hardware which involves the use of dedicated recording equipment, such as cameras, microphones, memory cards etc. Apart from, a green screen is also installed to shape the background during recording. In addition, to keep adequate lighting during lecture capturing, a set of studio like LED Based Lights are also installed. These devices are installed in the lecture capturing lab which enables us to capture the audio, video, and other elements of the lecture as and when it is delivered.

SCREEN CASTOMATIC

Begin and end recording with one click

Select area of desktop to record

Manage video with clean, simple toolbar

Drag and resize this frame to surround recording area.

Toggle record/pause with OPTION-P

What Does this Tool Do?

Screencastomatic is video and audio screen capture software. It has an online version that works well with windows, but doesn't always work with Mac OS. There is also a desktop version that works equally well. Features of the program include:

- Click video screen capture and upload directly to Youtube

Here's what it looks like:

Who is this Tool For?

Screencast-o-matic has been indispensable for me in both classroom and administrative applications. The most obvious use is for making tutorial videos demonstrating use of a digital tool - the pointer tool makes it easy for viewers to see where you click as you record the demonstration. I used it when I launched our online writing center - the screencasts of demo sessions helped students feel more comfortable with meeting a consultant online.

In the classroom, Screencast-o-matic is useful for recording audio commentary on student writing; as you can see in the video below, it's easy to talk through the artifact as you read or watch it, highlighting with the pointer tool as you go.

Once you finish the screencast, you have the choice to upload it to Youtube directly from the program or just save the video file to your hard drive and upload it yourself to
