| Description (min 250 to max 800 words) | Sushant University recently hosted an innovative Digital Rangoli Competition centred around the theme of Environmental Conservation. Held virtually, this event aimed to blend traditional Indian art with modern digital techniques, highlighting pressing environmental issues through vibrant and thought-provoking designs.

The competition saw enthusiastic participation from students across various disciplines, each bringing their unique perspective to the theme. The digital format allowed participants to experiment with a wide range of colours, textures, and patterns, creating intricate and visually stunning rangolis that conveyed powerful messages about the need for environmental protection.

Participants were encouraged to draw inspiration from various aspects of environmental conservation, including climate change, wildlife preservation, renewable energy, and sustainable living. The resulting artworks were a testament to the students' creativity and awareness, depicting scenes of lush forests, endangered animals, clean energy sources, and the stark contrasts between polluted and pristine environments.

Judged by a panel of faculty members, the competition emphasized originality, artistic skill, and the effectiveness of the environmental message. |

Description (min 250 to max 800 words)*	– VHTBS on occasion of Womens day Invited Dr. Shivani Gupta for a motivational sessiuo n for our female students. This is the story of Dr. Shivani Gupta, a determined, resolute and a strong-minded lady whose willpower, backed with a strong purpose made her achieve all that she wanted to, despite her everlasting physical limitations. A carefree and a joyous young graduate from the hotel management stream who sought to excel in this field unfortunately suffered a setback, an accident which paralyzed her partially, and put her on a wheelchair for the rest of her life. "This was like being a child again. I started being dependent on people around me for everything", said she, though nor regretfully as she expressed joy in achieving all that she could not have otherwise.
